Village Undertakes Historic Preservation Survey

Downers Grove has embarked on a historical survey to document historic homes, buildings and neighborhoods in the village. As a certified local government, Downers Grove is eligible to apply for grant funding, and has received funding from the State of Illinois to help pay for the survey. In late 2012, the Village contracted the Lakota Group of Chicago to perform a thorough assessment of properties in the village that may have historic value.

From 1971-1975 an initial effort was undertaken under the State of Illinois' Historic Architectural and Archaeology Resources Geographic Information System (HAARGIS) as part of an extensive statewide survey of potentially historic architecture. The survey identified and provided a picture and brief descriptions of 161 properties in Downers Grove, the majority of which were single-family residences.

In 2007, Village staff reviewed the HAARGIS survey and was able to identify and photograph 160 of the original 161 properties. Two examples of these are shown here.

Drew House

The analysis efforts of the current survey are concentrated in the following Village areas (in approximate priority order):

1. Denburn Woods (more modern construction, but architecturally significant)
2. Shady Lane Estates (nearly untouched early post-World War II suburban development.)
3. Honorary Maple Avenue Historic District (first residential neighborhood of Downers Grove)
4. Honorary E. H. Prince Subdivision District (with Prince Pond and the "brick streets" area)
5. Honorary Main Street Historic District (generally, the downtown area)
6. Previously identified homes that may be Sears Homes.

Pierce Downer's Heritage Alliance has been asked to assist with researching properties for this project and have dedicated themselves to the task. PDHA members have already spent considerable time researching microfiche and entering data for Denburn Woods and Shady Lane Estates and look forward to dedicating more time to this worthy cause.

If you have a home that you feel has historic value to the village and would like to contribute data to include in the survey, please contact the Community Development Department or SPopovich@Downers.US

PDHA Supports Bee Yard at Lyman Woods

“On the afternoon of Saturday, July 28th, we visited the home and apiary of Bro. Walter C. Lyman of Downer's Grove, Ills. 20 miles southwest of the city on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad . . . our object was to see Mr. Lyman's bees, and to study the methods he uses.”

So reads, in part, an article in the August 6, 1894 edition of American Bee Journal.

Walter C. Lyman was a champion beekeeper, who kept bees on his property, a portion of which is now Lyman Woods. He published articles in the American Bee Journal, and exhibited beekeeping techniques at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1892. Now beekeeping is returning to Lyman Woods as an environmental education program.

After studying alternatives to expand our support of programs at Lyman Woods, PDHA settled on the beekeeping program as offering a combination of historical relevance, environmental lessons, and an opportunity for involvement of different age groups. A one-time donation from PDHA leveraged additional funding from the Downers Grove Park District to buy five beehives, bees, tools, and protective gear for program participants. Lyman Woods staff and volunteers are doing the rest. Marge Trocki, Interpretive Naturalist at Lyman Woods, lends her expertise as an experienced beekeeper and a Director of the Cook-DuPage Beekeepers Association and Secretary of the Will County Beekeepers Association.

A colony of bees was added to each new hive.

In April, volunteers installed the hives and the bees were introduced (see photos). If all goes well, the bees will be established and honey will be available for harvest in the fall.

Interest by visitors has been strong. The Interpretive Center already has an observation hive sandwiched between layers of glass, allowing viewers to see the honeycombs and the bees at work. According to Shannon Forsythe, Manager of Natural Resources and Interpretive Services, the observation hive has been one of the more popular exhibits at the Center. And she began getting inquiries about the new beekeeping project even before any hives were set up or programs scheduled.

At PDHA's request, Ms. Forsythe consulted local expert Dr. Lawrence DuBose about the potential impact of the hives on native bees. He reassured her (and us) that five hives would not significantly interfere with our local native pollinators.

Arbor Day 2013

Two classes of first graders from Whittier School participated in this year's Arbor Day celebration, helping plant two Bald Cypress Trees in Hummer Park. (One donated by PDHA.) Also there were Mark Roman and Bob Gelwicks of the Park District board, Executive Director Bill McAdam, and PDHA representatives Gordon Goodman, Marge Earl and Mark Thoman.

These first graders are graduates of the last fall's Little Sprouts Program at Lyman Woods, which PDHA supports with an annual contribution. On April 26th those kids came full circle in the program by planting a tree and taking home a sapling of their own to plant. The kids voted to name one of the trees, "Dominator." Here's hoping it lives up to its name! – By Marge Earl.

Lyman Woods Holds Back Stormwater

The amount of water retained by Lyman Woods in this spring's mid-April flood is conservatively estimated to be approximately 137 acre-feet of water, which is equivalent to over 44 million gallons of stormwater. The flooding of Highland Avenue and downstream areas would have been noticeably worse without the natural ability of the Lyman Woods Preserve to retain and absorb stormwater.

efforts of our tireless volunteers, PDHA is able to support environmental education programs like the Little Sprouts program for first graders, and provide seed money for exciting new programs like the Lyman Woods Bee Yard Project. Your tax-deductible donation will help us continue our efforts to preserve Downers Grove's unique cultural and natural resources, and will be most sincerely appreciated. Thank you, Ken Lerner, Chair.
